NEW QUESTION: 1

An IT manager is working with a project manager from another subsidiary of the same multinational organization. The project manager is responsible for a new software development effort that is being outsourced overseas, while customer acceptance testing will be performed in house. Which of the following capabilities is MOST likely to cause issues with network availability?

- A. Source code vulnerability scanning
- B. File-size validation
- C. ISP to ISP network jitter
- D. End to end network encryption
- E. Time-based access control lists

Answer: E

Explanation:

The new software development effort is being outsourced overseas. Overseas means a different country and therefore a different time zone. Time-based access control lists allow access to resources only at defined times, for example: during office hours. If time-based access control lists are used at the overseas location while customer acceptance testing will be performed in house, it is likely that the testing would be performed at a time which is not allowed by the time-based access control lists.

Time-based ACLs are types of control lists that allow for network access based on time or day. Its function is similar to that of the extended ACLs. Time-based ACLs is implemented by creating a time range that defines specific times of the day and week.

This time range created have to be identified with a specific name and then refer to it by a function.

The time restrictions are imposed on the function itself.

Time-based ACLs are especially useful when you want to place restriction(s) on inbound or outbound traffic based on the time of day.

For example, you might apply time-based ACLs if you wanted to only allow access to the Internet during a particular time of the day or allow access to a particular server only during work hours. The time range relies on the router system clock.

Incorrect Answers:

A: Source code vulnerability scanning is used to test application source code for security vulnerabilities. It would not cause issues with network availability.

C: This question is asking for the MOST likely to cause issues with network availability. ISPs have very fast WAN links between them which makes ISP to ISP network jitter very unlikely.

D: File-size validation is usually used to restrict the maximum size of a file that can be sent by a system, commonly email. File-size validation would just prevent a file that is too large being sent over the network; it would not affect network availability.

E: End to end network encryption might affect access to a system if one system was not able to meet the required encryption standards. However this is very unlikely and it would not affect the availability of the network.
