NEW QUESTION: 1

Correlation is a term frequently used in conjunction with regression analysis and is measured by the value of the coefficient of correlation, r . The best explanation of the value r is that it:

- A. Is always positive.
- B. Is a measure of the relative relationship between two variables.

C. Interprets variances in terms of the independent variable.

D. Ranges in size from negative infinity to positive infinity.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The coefficient of correlation r measures the strength of the linear relationship between the dependent and independent variables. The magnitude of r is independent of the scales of measurement of x and y . The coefficient lies between -1.0 and $+1.0$. A value of zero indicates no linear relationship between the x and y variables. A value of $+1.0$ indicates a perfectly direct relationship, and a value of -1.0 indicates a perfectly inverse relationship.
