NEW QUESTION: 2

Which of the following security protocols are based on the 802.11i standard?

Each correct answer represents a complete solution. Choose all that apply.

- A. WPA
- B. WEP2
- C. WPA2
- D. WEP

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

WPA (Wi-Fi Protected Access) and WPA2 are two security measures. These can be used to protect wireless networks. WPA is based on a draft version of the 802.11i standard. It defines the 4-way key handshake for Infrastructure mode (stations associated with APs) but not for Ad Hoc mode (station associated with peer station). The second generation of the WPA security protocol (WPA2) is based on the final 802.11i standard. WPA uses only TKIP (Temporal Key Integrity Protocol), whereas WPA2 can use either TKIP or an advanced AES.

Theoretically, WPA is hack able, while WPA2 is not. Answer option A is incorrect. Wired Equivalent Privacy (WEP) is a security protocol for wireless local area networks (WLANs). It has two components, authentication and encryption. It provides security, which is equivalent to wired networks, for wireless networks. WEP encrypts data on a wireless network by using a fixed secret key. WEP incorporates a checksum in each frame to provide protection against the attacks that attempt to reveal the key stream. Answer option B is incorrect.

Presently, there is no such type of security protocol.
