NEW QUESTION: 1

After Matt, a user, enters his username and password at the login screen of a web enabled portal, the following appears on his screen:

'Please only use letters and numbers on these fields'

Which of the following is this an example of?

- A. Improper input validation
- B. Improper error handling
- C. Proper error handling
- D. Proper input validation

Answer: D

Explanation:

Input validation is an aspect of secure coding and is intended to mitigate against possible user input attacks, such as buffer overflows and fuzzing. Input validation checks every user input submitted to the application before processing that input. The check could be a length, a character type, a language type, or a domain.

Incorrect Answers:

A, D: Error handling is an aspect of secure coding. When errors occur, the system should revert back to a secure state. This must be coded into the system, and should include error and exception handling.

C. Improper input validation would allow user input to be used as an attack vector. In such an event input would not be checked and the user would not receive a message from the system.
